AT THE ALAMO AND THE PARIS GRAND

To-morrow, at the Alamo and the Paris Grand, Buck Jones, the famous star of the Fox pictures, will be seen in a new screen picture, "Riding With Death." Jones has gotten up in the screen world and has dropped his name "Buck," and will henceforth be known as Charles Jones. In "Riding With Death," Jones enacts the part of a Texas Ranger. The story deals with a struggle between the Ranger, at first single-handed, and a crooked sheriff with his henchmen. It is a tale of love, of wonderful friendship and of fast and furious action.

Coming Monday, a triple-featured program, Miss Elizabeth Ferguson, a talented little dancer, and popular Paris favorite, will be presented Monday and Tuesday night at the Paris Grand, at 8:30 o'clock, in a number of classic dances. Paris people will welcome this dainty little favorite with much applause. The Grand Trio will be held over for another week, owing to their popularity with the theatre-going patrons.

Pola Negri will be presented Monday, also, in "The Devil's Pawn." This is a Paramount picture which has met with great favor throughout the country. The eleventh episode of "Robinson Crusoe" and a Pathe Review conclude the program.

THE GRAND'S MUSICAL TRIO

Theatre-goers who attend the Grand and Alamo are delighted with the Musical Trio, composed of Miss Elizabeth Rule, piano, Purnell Mastin, saxophone, and William Mitchell, drums, who furnish daily programs of jazz and popular music. That they are pleasing patrons of these popular movie houses is evidenced by the applause which greets each number. The Musical Trio will be kept over at both houses through next week, or as long as the public show their appreciation of the program rendered.

FRIDAY

COLLEEN MOORE in "Come On Over"

Don't leave any of them at home—or Daddy will be sorry for the laughs he misses. It's Rupert Hughes' funniest story. It's homely and humorous.

DORIS MAY in "Gay and Devilish"

A rollicking, uproarious farce full to the brim with sheer fun, joyous nonsense and real romance.

SATURDAY—

CHARLES JONES in "Riding With Death"

A Western story—a Western star—Western atmosphere—of fast-riding rangers—big-fisted—hard-fighting—tender-loving two-gun men. A dynamic, sensational drama of hair-raising stunts, daredevilry, and, oh, yes, of course, there's plenty of romance and love.

AL ST. JOHN IN THE "VILLAGE SHEIK" AND PATHE NEWS

MONDAY—

POLA NEGRI in "The Devil's Pawn"

It's a Paramount picture featuring the star of "Passion," a truly great artist, in an appealing story.
